HEARINGS

MFRP Corp.
d/b/a The Squire
604 Squire Road
Peter DePesa, Manager

Hearing: Hearing into failure to provide adequate security, resulting in multiple violent attacks on patrons. –

Rob DePesa appeared for the hearing. He described the record in their last six months since dispensing with police details and engaging a private security company. He noted that times are very difficult from a safety perspective, but reported that they had few incidents in the intervening time, and considered the change a success.

Commissioner Selevitch noted that police reports supported this account, and asked Lt. Malley for his view. Lt. Malley agreed that they certainly had improved. He asked for some details concerning the security company and how they are managing their operations from a logistical standpoint. Mr. DePesa had Filipe Monteiro, the owner of Guardian Capital, address those questions. Mr. Monteiro briefly described his business history and methodology. Before they develop a security plan, they first conduct an audit of the business's operations. In this case, they made sure to concentrate on the front entrance, to set expectations, and the parking lot, which has historically been a source of trouble.

Commissioner Occena said that he has parked in the parking lot a few times to observe how the lot is managed and has been favorably impressed with the improvement in security. He moved to put the matter on file. Commissioner Monroy seconded the motion, and it was VOTED to place the matter on file.

Wonderland Entertainment, LLC
d/b/a Oceanside Events Center
1290 North Shore Road
Charles Delpidio, Manager

Review Hearing: Review of effectiveness of new security changes.

Charles Delpidio and Taras Hrabec appeared for the hearing. Mr. Delpidio began by stating that he had come before the Commission last month to ask for help (i.e., a reduction in required detail officers from the police and fire departments), that the help had been granted and then taken away, and that he had decided this was fine, and he will pass the cost to his customers. Commissioner Occena inquired into fire safety violations involving a barred exit door, and was told that the business needs new doors and that the problem is fixed.

Acting Fire Chief James Cullen asserted that his department had been keeping the business safe for 25 years, and asked the Commission to mirror his order that Oceanside engage fire detail officers whenever any room is in use, with the single exception that he will allow the business to have up to 100 patrons in the smallest room (occupancy: 300) without requiring a fire detail. Chief Cullen took pains to clarify that he does not need the Commission to agree with his ruling, as he is the authority having jurisdiction. Commissioner Occena asked if Chief Cullen could clarify the specific reasons for requiring a fire detail in a room with an occupancy of 300 when the room was only one-third full and was reminded that there have been fire details for 25 years, and that the chief has substantial leeway in determining when and if a fire detail is required in any business or situation by virtue of his position. Commissioner Occena acknowledged that, but asked for more specifics and Chief Cullen referred the Board to his code enforcement deputy, Deputy Chief Paul Cheever, who supported fire details when all the rooms are occupied, but referred specifics concerning the smallest room to his chief. Commissioner Occena asked for a description of the duties of the fire detail and was told by Chief Cullen that fire detail officers patrol aisles and egresses and check the alarm systems. Commissioner Selevitch asked Mr. Delpidio how many certified crowd control managers were employed by the business. Mr. Hrabec, answering on behalf of Mr. Delpidio, replied that they had enough to meet the requirements under state law. Deputy Cheever disputed that, pointing out that if all three rooms are used, the business needs ten crowd control managers under the law, and that it only has eight. Chairman Selevitch directed Mr. Delpidio to rectify that situation.

Captain Kevin O'Hara rose to speak before the Commission, representing the members of Local 926. He spoke of his experience working a detail shift at Oceanside ten years ago, and of his determination to protect his brothers and sisters in the union. He referenced the Station nightclub fire of 2003, and the recent fire at a Fall River nursing, as examples of what happens when public safety is cut back. He has not worked at the business for some years, but intends to resume doing so, as he is concerned for the public. He closed by announcing that crowd control managers are not firefighters.

Commissioner Occena had continued concerns about the requirement to have a fire detail when the small room has more than 100 people, and asked if Chief Cullen would consider increasing that minimum number. Chief Cullen declined to reconsider. Commissioner Selevitch proposed making all of Chief Cullen's recommendations as a condition of the license with the exception of fire detail officers in the smallest room. Commissioner Occena agreed with that compromise, noting that Mr. Delpidio did have the option to appeal Chief Cullen's decision with the state's Fire Prevention Regulations Appeals Board.

Commissioner Selevitch moved to require the following: fire detail officers shall be required whenever either larger room is used, and shall not be required in those cases where only the smallest room is operating. This motion was seconded by Commissioner Occena and carried unanimously.
